BOBBIE ON MOVE-OUT DAY

“Being displaced is not something you plan for. I finally have my life back. Having a home means everything. I didn’t realize today would feel so touching. I’m so excited! I have a kitchen! It’s been so long since I got to cook for myself. I’m excited to enjoy the balcony. To have my own space, to have more than just a small tote with my whole life packed in it.”

JACK, FROM THE VILLAGE

“I grew up on a farm, so I always worked on the farm. My favorite thing was just being there with my family. Just trying to make a life, that’s all. Trying to make it a good life. It’s nice when you have a roof over your head, you can put stuff in your icebox, you can go out and do your routines during the day. When it’s all snatched away from you, it’s no fun. Having your own lock and key really makes a difference.”

RENAE & JASON, A FRESH START

“Everyone has a story and anybody can fall into a category. We’ve been there for each other through everything we went through, and we’ve gotten through this together. Being housed means everything. Getting our dog back, getting our life back. It will be nice to wake up again in a house of our own. To have our own shower, our own kitchen. It will mean stability. A fresh start.”
